

MIGRATION POLICY PRACTICE

CALL FOR ABSTRACTS

The aim of Migration Policy Practice is to enrich our collective understanding of the dynamic dimensions of international migration through evidenced-based research, data and analysis in order to inform migrant-responsive policymaking and programming at the local, regional, and international levels.

Submissions are welcome on a range of topics including evolving/new migration patterns and processes, as well as particular migrant groups such as migrant workers, international students, displaced persons (IDPs and refugees), and/or specific issues related to gender/demography, nationality, migration status, COVID-19, migration and development, and diaspora for example. Submissions highlighting new methodologies in the field of migration and/or opportunities for innovative policies and practices for State and civil society actors are encouraged.

Submission criteria and process

Please make sure your abstract:

- ✓ Features rigorous, balanced and policy-relevant research and analysis on new or complex topics (please see the guidance note for authors)
- ✓ Provides a short summary outline of the article (maximum 200 words)
- ✓ Is submitted by 26 May 2023 together with a short bio of the author(s) (maximum 100 words) by email to research@iom.int referring to 'MPP abstract submission' in the subject line.

The editors aim to shortlist abstracts within 4 weeks of the deadline. Selected authors will be invited to submit a full article of 2,500 words within 6 weeks. Articles will then be peer reviewed to ensure quality.

About Migration Policy Practice

Migration Policy Practice focuses on policy-oriented research and analysis with the aim to contribute to a better understanding of the multidimensional aspects of migration and inform migration policies at the national, regional and international levels. The new editors (Marie McAuliffe, IOM; Charles Kwenin, University of Ghana; Richa Arora, GIZ) span the boundaries of migration scholarship, migration policy and migration practice with decades of experience in the field, including across diverse geographic and geopolitical settings.

All publications will be freely available online in IOM Online Bookstore, ensuring a wide reach and impact among policymakers, as well as practitioners, scholars, researchers and students interested in issues related to migration. Please click here or the image to read the latest issue.
